Publishers Are Enthusiastic in Offers. Authors' Interest in Journal's Suggestion.

Battle Ship's Commander Says It Charms Officers and Enchants Crew.

PUBLISHERS whose catalogues are voluminous were preoccupied yesterday by nothing graver than the choice of the works that are to present to the Santiago Memorial Library. Authors asked themselves and their critics what were the books by which their style should be represented in that extraordinary collection. Book lovers brushed the dust from the gilt edges of their old tomes and scrutinized again the works that are to be their gifts as book-lovers—gifts of books precious to them. E. F. Bonaventure offered the books that he has published, including a complete set of the works of George Alfred Townsend, some of which have not been republished. He said that he would take pleasure in making an extra illustrated copy of some novel history for presentation to the officers and crew of the Texas.

In work of that sort he is an adept. To a history in type he adds a history in pictures. He collects all the portraits of men and all the images of scenes described in a book, inlays them on pages of paper similar to that of the book, inlays the pages of the book if the scarce images are larger than the book, extends one volume to two or three volumes if the additions of pictures make that extension necessary, calls to his aid all the arts of the Grangerite and of the book binder, and produces a unique work. The Grangerite is so called because he exercised his love for extra illustrations for the first time, on Granger's History of England, published many years ago. Since then the rarest prints have been found in books where they were inserted by Grangerites. A great quantity

THE PRESIDENT MAY REVEW TROOPS

Collis and Sickles Off to Invite Him to Returning Soldiers' Ovation.

General C. H. T. Collis and Daniel E. Sickles, the active members of the committee appointed at the Old Soldiers' meeting on Monday to make arrangements for a reception in this city to the returned soldiers and sailors, have been working quietly, but effectively, in the past two days. Many persons have asked them regarding the details of the reception, its probable date, the character of the program, and other matters—but to all they have replied that, first, it is too early to attempt to give thought to details, and, secondly, that, while the suggestion of a reception came from the Old Soldiers, the latter, from the beginning, designed it to be a popular demonstration and, therefore, would not attempt to designate its character and scope.

It is their hope that, whatever shape those organizing the reception may decide it shall take, it will be essentially a demonstration that will show, as far as possible, what changes have taken place in military life in the country since the close of the War of the Rebellion. Whatever is new in drill, arms, equipment and uniform they wish to be distinctly revealed to the eyes of the public in the display that within a month, probably, will bring the city's millions and the surrounding country's thousands to throng New York's streets.

The Rough Riders—a military evolution of the cowboy, who is practically a novelty in this country—has captured the public imagination. The Rough Riders are among the features of the war with Spain that, they believe, the people want to see. It is also the desire of the committee to have supplied in the demonstration a complete exposition of the heavy artillery, the new and the old, and the present conflict has set to rest any lingering doubts about the good feeling between these sections of the country. They want to have the blue and the gray side by side on the streets of New York under the old flag for all to see.

Many other picturesque and interesting features are in the minds of the committee, but many of them are of a kind that cannot be secured without the cooperation of high authorities and these the committee will work hard to secure.

It was with this view that Generals Collis and Sickles went together yesterday to Washington. Their first duty there will be to call upon the President and secure his aid in the promotion of the celebration. It is their hope that, circumstances permitting, they may be able to persuade the President to review the soldiers and sailors that take part in the pageant, for it is generally agreed that a review of the army and navy is one of the most important features of the celebration.

On their return from Washington they will, in obedience to the instructions of the meeting at which they were appointed to act, visit Governor Black and Mayor Van Wyck. It is understood that Generals Collis and Sickles had an informal chat with the Mayor yesterday on the subject, and that within a few days his Honor will call a meeting at which a committee of arrangements will be appointed to carry out the details of the demonstration.

Labor Day is still regarded as peculiarly suitable for the affair. The selection of that day would leave little enough time in which to prepare for as big an event as the committee is projecting, but it is believed that suitable sub-committees, working with energy, will be able by that time to arrange for an event worthy of all the laurels involved.

LAST SEARCH OF THE WHITE STAR

Detectives Follow the Ship to Sea as Far as Fire Island.

The White Star steamship Britannic sailed for Liverpool at noon yesterday with a new staff of officers—save two exceptions. The ship carried a full cargo, eight or ten trucks of United States mail and fully $100,000 worth of silver in pigs.

Of course Captain Haddock, for whom this has been a heartrending voyage, was on the bridge. The White Star company knows him too well to look confidant in his integrity or executive ability. Chief Officer J. W. Jago's place was taken by former Second Officer J. Radish. S. A. Anvil was acting first officer, F. Kelp acting second officer, J. Roberts acting third officer and T. Freeman acting fourth officer. The places of assistant stewards William Bernard, Henry Galway and Thomas Tighe were taken by other men, for they were in Ludlow Street Jail awaiting the trial of the Grand Jury.

There was a very uneasy feeling among the men aboard the ship. The White Star line is swarmed with Central Office detectives, Jersey sleuths, United States deputy marshals and Post Office inspectors. They were all looking for a last clue before the voyage began. They wanted to find Jago, the former chief officer, who is now known to have been the promoter of all the rascality unearthed aboard.

Detectives did not lack for rumors. They got word that Jago was to sail aboard the Red Star liner yesterday and watched each passenger ascending the gang plank. They looked through the ship without discovering him, and the Westerner sailed away.

Then a rumor gained currency that Jago had been spotted at the Britannic during Tuesday night as a stowaway. Captain Haddock heard of it, and at the last, he sent a search party to look for him. They searched the ship, for his protection and theirs. They had not quite finished when the ship sailed, and the search party was left to find Jago on the high seas.

At the steamship agency in the Bowling Green Building, it was said a detailed report had been made to the British Foreign Office. They said they had no fear of the United States Government taking the carrying of the mails away from the company, as they would show they had done their best, and were willing to do all that had been or would be required of them in the future.

There is already a controversy as to which Government shall prosecute. The Federal authorities in New York and in New Jersey believe the British Government alone has jurisdiction.

Brooklyn Dentist Fined for Burying His Spaniel Alive—Jerseyman Lead a Sick Cow to Slaughter.

Animals Suffer by Man's Brutality.

Instrument of torture used by a Paterson man to punish his horse. Jerseyman led a diseased cow to the butcher's knife. Some one cut off the tail of Blumenthal's little yellow dog.

"Sooner," the Pride of the Barracks, Is Dead.

Hundreds of people watched the destruction of the old "Barracks" at Oliver and Oak streets yesterday under the direction of Inspectors of the Building Department. The condemned structure was built many years ago, when mud, mortar and bricks resisted the blows of hammers and crowbars, as if they were of solid steel.

But it was not the tearing down of the buildings or the sudden dumping of the tenants and their household goods on the street that caused the tear-stained faces and aching hearts among the people. Their grief was due to the loss of "Sooner," the pet bulldog of Tom McCormack, one of the old characters of Cherry Hill.

Nobody knows where "Sooner" came from. He was first seen in the neighborhood years ago when he was a pup and romped into the Barracks. He was adopted by McCormack and ever afterward occupied the softest spot in McCormack's humble quarters.

Sooner developed into the greatest fighter in Cherry Hill and he was never whipped whether fighting for a purse in Tom Gannon's pit or for glory with the mongrels in the street. Sooner owned the Barracks. He was welcome everywhere and played with the children just as if he were not a dog. He had a trick of rocking the cradles in the Barracks, and every mother in the neighborhood felt that her baby was safe and had no hesitation in leaving her home while Sooner was in charge.

The price for beauty would all pass by Sooner, but he had no superior as a rat-catcher, and, in fact, had cleared the Barracks of the pests. He was everybody's friend, was never known to harm a child, but he has for many years been a terror to the many rats and mice that preyed upon the tenants in the Barracks.

When the workmen came to tear down the structure before the tenants had found a place to move and this aroused all the hatred of the tenants. They crowded all directed to move from the Barracks by an order of the Court on Monday, and they suddenly obeyed.

Some Brute Cut Off a Little Dog's Tail.

Used a Barbed Goad on a Horse.

A club two feet long, with a long leather strap attached, heavy iron staples driven through the leather thong, with their points projecting an inch on the other side was the goad which a Paterson man contrived for flogging his faithful horse.

A green young officer of the S. P. C. A. saw the barbed goad in use by its owner on fashionable Broadway, the horse struggling desperately with a load too great for its strength. The officer confiscated the goad and let the man go on his promise to appear in court.

The fellow failed to appear before Justice Keyes, and his address proved to be false. President Arthur W. Bishop, of the S. P. C. A., has placed the goad on exhibition at his headquarters to show the hideous extremes which human cruelty may reach. His own recommendation would be that the maker of the goad, if found, should be put to death. The dog was the property of fifteen-year-old Abraham Blumenthal, of No. 326 East Thirtieth Street. He took the dog for a walk in Thirtieth Street, between First and Second avenues, on Tuesday, and met a man with another dog. The animals began to fight, and Blumenthal said that the man drew a knife and cut Blumenthal's dog's tail off.

Blumenthal furnished a description of the dog, and the police arrested O'Neill. The prisoner denied that he had cut the dog's tail, but said that he knew a man whose name was Cummings, answering the description. Cummings was subpoenaed and appeared in court in the afternoon. Magistrate Pool discharged both for lack of evidence.

Searches Wreck for Dead Bodies. Infall. Aug. 10.—The derelict schooner James N. Seaman, which was towed in here several weeks ago, was righted yesterday. No bodies were found on the wreck. The hatch, rails, etc., are all torn away, and from the appearance of the stern there is scarcely any doubt that the vessel was sunk in collision.

John Condon, forty-two years old, a Jersey City butcher, was arraigned in court yesterday on the charge of cruelty to animals in driving a sick cow through the streets of this city. Agent John O'Brien, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, had been informed that it was the custom of three men to drive diseased cows through Jersey City late at night and slaughter them in vacant lots on the outskirts of the city.

O'Brien yesterday morning saw three men coming along West Side Avenue. Two of them were in a wagon, while the third was walking behind, leading a cow with a rope. O'Brien saw the men enter the lot and prepare to kill the cow. When the men in the wagon saw O'Brien they lashed the horse and escaped in the utmost confusion. Condon was captured, and he was taken to the police station. He was found to be diseased. The police will arrest Condon's companions.

Dr. George E. H. Sayre, a dentist of No. 631 Bedford Avenue, Williams Avenue, who with his wife is well known in Brooklyn society, was fined $50 yesterday in the Court of Special Sessions for maltreating and burying alive a water spaniel pup.

Dr. Sayre is about thirty years old. He received the animal a few weeks ago, and undertook to make a household pet of it. It was hard work, and he began to use a stick to punish the animal in the manner he threw the dog into a hole he had dug in the yard. In the early part of July the neighbors of Dr. Sayre one evening heard the pitiful whining of the animal.

Agnes Sherwood, a servant in an adjoining house, as well as other neighbors, saw the animal in the hole. They went to the yard, pressed his foot down on the animal and then covered it with earth. The people protested, and the animal was released. The animal, Miss Sherwood sent a complaint to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and after an investigation a warrant against Dr. Sayre was issued by Magistrate Kramer in the Police Court.

When the fine was imposed Dr. Sayre paid it. He said he would not appeal the case. Dr. Sayre said last night that the pup was no longer in his possession. He declined to tell what has become of the animal.

A little yellow dog, with its tail cut off, was in evidence before Magistrate Pool, in the Yorkville Police Court, yesterday. William O'Neill, of No. 337 East Thirtieth Street, was under arrest charged with cruelty to animals.

The dog is the property of fifteen-year-old Abraham Blumenthal, of No. 326 East Thirtieth Street. He took the dog for a walk in Thirtieth Street, between First and Second avenues, on Tuesday, and met a man with another dog. ## MRS. NACK WANTS TO SELL HER LOTS.

Mayor Walker, of Guttenburg, Is Willing to Buy, but to Whom Shall He Pay the Money?

Mayor Walker, of Guttenburg, N. J., has received a letter from Mrs. Augusta Natch, dated from the State prison at Auburn, asking him to buy from her the two lots in his town which he sold her two years ago. When Mrs. Natch purchased the property she was accompanied by Golden-Suppe. She has not paid the full amount.

Mayor Walker says he will repurchase the two lots, but says he does not know to whom to pay the money, and is waiting to ascertain if New York State allows him to pay the cash to a convict.

Two clerks from the New York Post Office have been selected for service either in Cuba or Porto Rico, and have gone to Washington to be assigned to duty. They are H. P. J. ## PHILIP CALLS UPON SAMPSON'S FAMILY.

Captain John Philip, of the battle ship Texas, visited the home of Rear Admiral Sampson, at Old Ridge, N. J., yesterday, and took luncheon with the Admiral's family. He said he was not favorably disposed toward his appointment to the Mare Island Navy Yard, which, it is said, is soon to be made. Ralph Sampson, a son of the Admiral, had arranged to give the Captain a big reception at the Delaware, Jersey and Western Railroad station, but Captain Philip, spoiled his plans by returning to New York over the Erie road.
